CLASSMATES

Senior Athletics

• There is an old adage that says we never appreciate anything until after we have lost it. This is true, not only in sports but in all other school activities. As our athletes go into life, to fight and win for themselves what they have fought and won for East Side, they will gaze back at their school activities with pride and satisfaction for, although at times the going was hard and to give up was easy, they showed courage and sportsmanship in facing a hard fought defeat rather than allowing the opposite team an easy victory. The example that these boys set shall be looked upon by their successors as a model of true sportsmanship and perseverance.

Although the football team was not highly successful, it has shown us the mettle of a number of boys who played on the team. First on our list of honor is Edward Reszutek. Ed. is one of those big, strong, silent boys who never say much but do a lot. He was one of the mainstays at the forward wall, playing a brand of football hard to equal. Football was not his only contribution to athletics, for he also played baseball and was on the cross-country team.

Anthony Nowosielski, "Navy" to most people, is one of those lads who played football scientifically. He held down the position at end, where his speed, shiftiness and knowledge were used to good advantage. "Navy" was also on track. He was also on cross country, bowling and swimming teams.

When George Duca announced that he was a candidate for the football team, everybody smiled and attempted to discourage him, but when, to everyone's surprise he appeared for practice, they knew he meant what he said. George then buckled down to work and made good as a guard, thus proving to everybody that he had more in him than he showed. "The Duke" also did well in the boxing exhibitions held every spring in the gym.

Our next subject is Al. Piontek, a big blond brute who has plenty of strength and knows how to use it. He was an average player, his second season being cut short by an injury suffered in the Barringer game. He was also manager of the baseball team. After him comes Frank Faiella. Frank is a little jovial fellow, commonly called "Smitty." Frank's services were invaluable to the football team. Although a carefree fellow, Frank knows when to be serious as he has shown in many games. Frank also displayed good form in boxing.

Ralph Spagnola, "Mizzeri" in the minstrel show, is a small, clever fellow who always made it hard for the opposite team. He is well known in amateur boxing circles, both in New Jersey and New York. Other boys who worked hard on the football team were Emil Arendt, Joe Fresolone, Henry Zamula and John Addeo.

Changing from football to track, we have Vincent Ushinskis, who captained the track team for two years. In 1935, Vinnie won the Junior City Championship for the 75-Yard Dash and the next year won the City Championship for the 100 yards. He was also on the Cross-Country team, played basketball and did some boxing.

James Morriello, ace 220 man for 4 years, always brought home points for East Side in the City Meets. He was an indispensable player on the varsity basketball team, making the All-City Team in 1934 and again in 1935. When interscholastic basketball was given up by East Side, he rendered services to interclass basketball teams. Jimmie also ran on cross-country teams.

Other participants in track were Nathan Cavaness, an expert sprinter and 440 man; Jacob Ravaglia, and DeWitt Jackson. Renie Jesel, besides being on the track team, did some fine twirling for the baseball team, along with Martin Banach, Jack Balsamo and Fred Ferchinger, who also did well on the baseball team.

Although East Side did not compete in basketball with other high schools, basketball did not fall by the wayside. Under Mr. Horowitz's direction, inter-class competition began. The 4A team captained at first by George Bertocchi, and later by Joe Pokusa, captured the inter-class championship without much difficulty. The players who gave our class this glory are Jack Balsamo, Stanley Gutkowski, Frank Bogdanowicz, Jake Ravaglia, Ellsworth Spicer, and Sam Stein.

These letter men have carried East Side to many a glorious victory. We hope with all sincerity that they will continue to be victorious in the future, in whatever enterprise they undertake.

Class Prophecy

• Ah, this horrible solitude that I placed myself in after missing the old gang of the June, 1937, graduating class, is finally catching up with me. I believe I may as well go for a walk, and, who can tell, I may meet one or two of the old rascals.

Out of doors at last; out under the beautiful sky with—but wait, who's that walking along the street? It looks like Tom Cicalese, but it couldn't be. Tom, it is known, joined the silent majority; not that he died, he married Lillian Generelli. Why it is Tom! "Hello, Tom," I hailed. "How's life treating you?"

"Terrible, and you can blame Ray Murray for that. He's a clerk at the License Department at the City Hall. I went there ten years ago to see him for a marriage license. I don't know, but ever since I used that license, I've led nothing but a dog's life. But say, I've learned something from this marriage which every married man sooner or later finds out. I've discovered that the difference between the Declaration of Independence and marriage is that the Declaration of Independence was the beginning of man's liberty, and marriage is the finish. So long now. Got to hurry home to the little lady."

Jolly fellow. Say! what's that happening down the street? This is mighty queer. It looks like two big children picking on a little man. Why, those big urchins are driving the little man away with rocks. "Hey, you kids, stop it!" yelled Reszutek the cop, running around the corner. "What're ya tryin' t' do?" "Why, you see, Mr. Cop, that little man's name is Mr. Thaddeus Zaborowski. He says my father owes him money for dues, and he wants to collect from us." To this Eddie replied, "You kids should learn to have more patience like our class did. If we had to put up with him; so could you." The little tots, as could be seen by their size, were undoubtedly the sons of Morriello and Piontek.

Gosh, I almost forgot. I've got to do my spring shopping at Kupper's Department Store. Now that I'm here (fast work) I'll look around for some good bargains. Can that be Florence Pabst at the notion counter as a saleslady? It sure is. Remember the fun she and DeWitt Jackson used to have? Speaking of the——, there goes Jackson up to the counter. Let's eavesdrop. Can't afford to miss this.

Jackson: "Hello, Florence, how much are your handkerchiefs?" Florence: "For a person like you, they are one dollar a dozen." Jackson: "My you're a little dear." Florence: "Oh, thank you, Mr. Jackson." Jackson: "Pardon me, my dear Miss Pabst, but I didn't mean you were—" Florence: "Never mind Mr. Jackson—I know many men who do think so. Good day, sir."

They still love each other it seems. There goes Lillian Zeiner and Marie Smith to the same counter. Lillian, "Dozen hankies. What's the price?" Florence, "Ninety-seven cents for handkerchiefs, and three cents for tax." Mary, "Never mind buying the tacks, Lillian. Your kid was sent home three times last week for placing them on the teacher's desk."

This Kupper's Department Store is quite an interesting place. Look who's floorwalker. Emil Santin! See if I can catch up to him before that noisy lady in the red dress catches him. That lady certainly can talk. Wonder who it is. Can it be—yes! it is—Julia Woytowich.

Emil Santin, seeing Julia, approaches her in his polished manner. Let's listen to this conversation. Emil, "Can I wait on you, Miss Woytowich?" Julia, "Oh, my heavens, I don't know, Emil. I have Joseph Michael Lennert, Jr., waiting on me at present, but—" Emil (brusquely), "I didn't mean that. I said "Can I wait on you." Julia, "All right, if you insist, but I warn you that Joe is liable to become very angry. You see, etc., etc." Emil (losing his polite and suave manner), "Say listen, dearie, I'm the floorwalker. Do you want anything?" Julia, "Oh, goody. Have you anything to give me." Emil (hysterically), "I want to wait on you. I'm the floorwalker." Julia, "That's all right, Emil. A floorwalker can make a very good husband, and—" This was too much for Emil, who sank unconscious to the floor. A call was immediately sent out to the Bibbo Hospital. When the ambulance arrived, I could see it was commandeered by Anne Piatek. Many of the nurses were formerly members of G. R.'s. There was Josephine Gawarecki, Rose Gatti, Lottie Gurdziel, Alice Blonkowski, and Julia Galuska. As I was leaving the store, I could hear Julia talking (of course) to no one in particular and of nothing in particular.

On leaving the store, I decided to visit the new City Hall which had been designed by Edwin Hoffman. Last week, Louise Schaab and Sophie Krayski had lectured on the importance of poetry, but today, a debate was being held between Mayor Nowosielski of Newark and Mayor Ravaglia of Hoboken. Mayor Ravaglia was expounding on the importance our schools played for the future of our country. As Mayor Ravaglia rambled on, Helen Kordys, his secretary, displayed her knowledge of shorthand as she scribbled into her notebook. All the while, Alice Henry, Mayor Nowosielski's secretary, amused herself by writing poetry. Being a very observant and quiet person, I was able to look over her shoulder without creating a disturbance. Here it is:

The Forest

Oh, forest free from city soot—

Where hand of man hath never set foot!

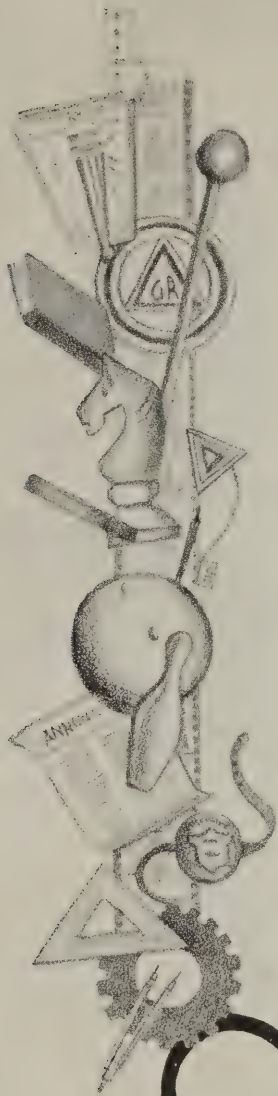

This sounded slightly confused, so I decided to listen to the ending of the Mayor's speech.

"So, in conclusion my friends, let me say this: Schools are the backbone of the nation—push it forward." Immediately, someone in the audience rushed to the stage and began to give another speech supporting the views of the Mayor. Is it necessary to say that this new soap-box orator was Sadie Franco? Mayor Nowosielski then had his argument against the further expanding of schools. "Mr. Mayor," he began, "Why should we do anything for our posterity; what has posterity done for us?"

The way these honorable gentlemen argued reminded me of a baseball game. They were all balled up. As I started to leave the room, I became conscious of the very beautiful ushers. But then, why shouldn't they be attractive? They were girls from our own class. There's Virginia Dominick, Jennie Monaco, Jennie Ciszewski, Irene Bers, Florence Kaminskis and Agnes Torben. Suddenly, a queer sensation traveled through me. While the debating was going on, there were three of my classmates serenely playing chess. The culprits were Jesse Roth and Stanley Dwyer, who were playing in consultation against Stanley Siwek. Leaving that meeting was certainly welcome.

Suddenly, the lights dimmed for the special floor show. The setting miraculously appearing was that of an old-fashioned church. Running out of a wing were Ralph Spagnola and Vincent Ushinskis dressed as black faced

REPUTATIONS ARE EARNED

Young men who aspire to high place should remember one truth of great importance.

It is the necessity for stern adherence to those ideals which go into the building of good character.

The world has a way of recognizing and helping the young and ambitious who are of good reputation.

FINE QUALITY PRINTING is nowhere so essential as in school and college annuals. The story told by copy is worthless unless the printed pages provide eloquent testimony of its truthful reproduction of campus life.

- Production of distinctive printing depends upon the masterful handling of such technicalities as layout, artwork, make-ready, and presswork, and also upon
the selection of proper ink,
paper and binding.
- Consistently good printing has made the Colyer organization the first and last choice of the leading schools and colleges.

comedians. This pair was taking Broadway by storm with their amusing antics. Vincent Ushinskis was dressed as the minister, Mesophalacius, while Ralph was the same pest, Mizzri. Following is a scene from the act. Mesophalacius, "Yo' all am a burning shame to humanity, Mizzri. Here yo' is forty years old and never baptized." Mizzri, "What does yo' all mean 'baptized.'" Mesophalacius, "Sho', yo' don't even know what the word means. Den lissen carefully, black boy, while I goes for the explain it. Ah takes yo' out into de watah, grabs yo' by the neck, and den dunks yo' in the watah. When yo' arises, your soul am washed clean from sin." Mizzri, "Dat sounds all right." Mesophalacius, "Sho' it am. Now ah'll baptize yo' all. Now imagine yourself in the midst of the watah. Ah grabs yo' by the neck, and ah yells, "Mizzri, am yo' ready to jine de army of the Lawd? Now is yo'? What does yo' say?" Mizzri, "Sho' ah's ready to jine de army of de Lawd, but wif all that watah, it looks like I would had done jined the navy." Mesophalacius, "Now, my brethren, the choir will sing "Thank Goodness, that Salvation am free," while Mizzri goes for a collection. Remember, folks, that while the choir am singing that salvation am free, we all has to sing it."

Seeing all these former friends made me want to see the rest. But this being summer, most of them had gone on their vacation to Florida or were in other parts of the continent. But wherever they are, and whatever they're doing, they will always be the same boys and girls at heart that we used to associate with. Long live the Class of June, 1937, and God Bless them.

—The Spectator.
